Season's Greetings

Ah but a breath and another solar gear has cranked its orbit in spiral patterned succession. To face the task of recounting another year of Boundary Conditions: the next rotation, the revolving stage of progression. Cast the die and turn the wheel; the sun keeps whirling overhead. I have fought hard through consciousness altering compounded lifelong karmic malady - and it has, like time's scythe flashing over our necks, dialed in my focus. Indeed, just as a stone is cut by water through the cycle of the aeons, I am chiseled by my love of the craft, drawn in like a black hole. My creative service's roots, feeding on the past half decade of hard work and decade+ of theme development, like tendrils pull me deep into the earth and already flower in abundance at the tapped fertility.

Bounty Quandary in Boundary County

In 2019, we taught classes at the hospital demonstration garden, library, plant society, national wildlife refuge, private grounds, and more. Consultations started Jan 5 and ended Dec 14, replete with a packed year of observation and analysis. I am pleased to say that 2019 was the first year from start to finish I had successfully grown or foraged all my entire food supply with abundance to share. I remember the first day in 2017 I had produced my first meal one hundred percent of the way... growth. Gallons and gallons of dried wild gourmet mushrooms = success. And the mushrooms herbs and berries of the mountain fastness confer their blessing upon my brain, sharpening it, and readying it to represent what they stand for before the public; to teach and inspire others to participate and design.

Boundary Conditions sponsored hundreds of hours of volunteer service, from large scale ecosystem to systematic social pattern monitoring, and donated both money and thousands of dollars worth of service to ecological and cultural restoration efforts. At present our efforts have been centered in the boundary region of the inland northwest mountains of North America. Other big news from this year is the finding a suitable site for a Northern Rockies Permaculture Research Institute urban headquarters, where we have moved to and are now setting up operation at! There is much implementation to be done, and design work to do all winter. The locals have taken interest and expressed excitement at the transformation happening before them (that is, what little breaking ground garden prep I could squeeze into November and December!) The energy is right, the time has come. There need be no more signs, but forward motion.

International, Regional and Local Collaborative Organization

The Inland Northwest Guild was a success its final year in Hot Springs, achieving fun-with solidly tribal and positive movement. Sandpoint is in our sights for sites for the 2020 con-and the leadership is building momentum just as the earth expresses its own will to regeneration. Our team is growing, vergence. Our team is growing, progress through our projects next year. International magazine involvement. Exciting collective projects of social consciousness shifting scale are in both order and motion. And so the wheel rotates!

You're invited...!

2-20-2020 2:20-20:20 is the time stamp code for the NRPRI prerelease open-house party. There was no time to install demonstration worthy rocket mass heater technology by the eve of this wintertime, but join us round the fireplace for a potluck around 18:00 and besides jovial merriment, discussion of the NRPRI mission and design. Our grand public opening shall be the summer solstice of this geometric year once we are then into phases of implementation of a master plan forest garden mainframe design. With this flagship, I shall bless the community with the services availed by an easily accessible animation/design studio and office. It is no coincidence the infrastructure on the property the NRPRI will occupy celebrates its 100th year anniversary as my first growing season on the fractal 2020.

Retrospection - Moving into a more conventional village-like settlement, TOWN, I am weakened by ambient toxins in a space dominated by human influence. To come out from the mountains, perhaps my archetypal exile, and rejoin a world which desperately needs this work, is a sacrifice and compromise compared to the life of a mountain man - but the path of destiny makes itself clear to he who would be led by it. This is an image of my first personalized forest garden. Nature's bounty, and the growth possible in even a short time, will not be the bottleneck reclaiming its stability. We already have everything we need to revitalize this entire planet.

In applying principles of harmonious design in the public demonstration forum the way I do, I shall continue to represent not only wolves and moose, but the extinct caribou of this rugged terrain - forsooth, I shall embody what they would dream of before everyone's eyes, and etch it into the landscape. Stay tuned for some big works. We are not afraid of what is in front of us.

Concluding Remarks

I have come a long ways since initiating leadership in this enterprise at the start of 2018. To avoid scaling too large too swiftly has been a challenge; there is no end to the work in sight. All the different branches of projects, the multiplex fractal infinities of diverging evolution, the boundless potential we have to solve problems and create boons in the same breath should we choose to take it deeply enough... And just as this memorandum began, so too does the sun set upon it as the cosmos crank and ebb in processional flow. Time continues, how shall we design our lives in the light of it? Be blessed as we bear witness to a new solar revolution... — J Smith, groundskeeper
